GREENVILLE-BASED STUDIO BRINGS HOLLYWOOD TO SOUTH CAROLINA

Greenville, South Carolina— Greenville-based Lingo Films and post-production company Skyline Post have partnered with Foretress Films for their upcoming feature-length film, Submission. Greenville native Justin Berrios will direct the film, written by U.S. Marine Corps Veteran Scott Pryor. Randall Owens of Skyline Post will also serve as Executive Producer on the project which is expected to begin filming in Greenville this fall.

Randall Owens is an Executive Producer and Director with a career spanning over 25 years. He has won multiple awards, including Emmys, Addys and Tellys. And in 2005, Randall co-founded Skyline Post. Director Justin Berrios is also an award-winning cinematographer. He has won multiple Addys for his work in television. In 2012 Berrios and Owens partnered to form their production company, Lingo Films, and based it in their hometown of Greenville.

Foretress Films produced last year's award-winning The List, starring Montell Jordan. The filmmakers originally planned to shoot Submission in Atlanta, their home base and the actual setting of Submission—but that was before Pryor and producer, Gloria Stella, met with Berrios and Owens. After seeing what Greenville has to offer and the state-of-the-art facilities at Lingo Films and Skyline Post, the decision was made to move the production out of its home state to South Carolina.

Submission tells the story of two marines after they make it home following an ISIS interrogation. One marine struggles to survive while the other fights his way back into the mixed martial arts world that he left behind years ago – looking for a fight worth living for.

The film will mark the third feature shot in Greenville by Lingo Films, following last year's Only God Can, starring Lisa Sheridan from TV's Invasion and Donna D'Errico, known for her role as Donna Marco on Baywatch.

Lingo Films hosted a table read for the film in their studio on July 15. "We were really impressed with the commitment and talent of the Carolina-based actors," stated Stella. Casting details and auditions dates will be announced soon via social media.
